CHAPTER XIX.
How Tumultuous came to be selected as private secretary—the influence on the administration.

Woodrow Wilson was raised in no small extent in what he accomplished in his first administration by the astuteness of his private secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, and the constant counsel of Colonel House and Albert Sidney Burleson, postmaster general, who had for many years been a member of the house of representatives.

Naturally the judgments of these advisers became the source of much debate among President Wilson's friends as would be natural in political matters. For every time that one man is selected the friends of the disappointed candidates are loud in their expressions of criticism. It has always been the view-point of politicians that there is that more enemies than friends are made by

CHECK UP BOOKS OF HAYWARD BANK

Report Will Be Sent to Washington; Criminal Action Held Possible.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hayward—Checking of the books of the First National bank of Hayward, closed recently by national bank examiners following the discovery of shortages, was continued today by national bank examiners and an agent of the department of justice.

Investigation into the bank's affairs was begun after a meeting of depositors when the condition of the bank was revealed by Henry E. Rohlf, president.

Although a definite amount of the missing dollars has not been determined, L. D. Wright, national bank examiner in charge of the situation, said the shortage would probably exceed $200,000. A report is expected to be completed the latter part of this week at which time it will be sent to Washington.

In view of the report, the department of justice will take the matter in hand, according to Mr. Wright.

CONGRESSMAN DEFENDANT IN SLANDER SUIT

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
New York—Slender suits for $100,000 were filed against Representative Ogden T. Miller by Schuyler M. Meyer, former state senator and William Chadbourn, president of the Bronx Hill republican club, for his accusation that they were offering to aid Senator William Johnson while protesting to support President Coolidge for the republican presidential nomination.

MOTHER OF DEAD AIR PILOT URGES PALS TO CARRY ON

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cleveland—Two letters urging his widow to "carry on" the work he did were made public today by Mrs. Kate Hyde-Pearson of Santa Monica, Cal., mother of Captain Leonard Hyde-Pearson, World war flyer and air mail pilot, killed 10 days ago in the mountains of Pennsylvania while carrying mail from New York to Cleveland.

The letters, addressed "to my beloved son, our pilot and pals," were marked "to be opened only after his death."

"To go west, but with a cheerful heart," one of the letters read, "I hope what small sacrifice I have made may be of use to the cause."

Captain Hyde-Pearson was buried here Sunday. He was not used after his death that his wife had known he had joined the British metropolitan service corps and was a member of the Victorian order.

The schedule, as announced by Major Martin, called for arrival at about 3 o'clock at Eugene, Ore. The flyers will remain in Eugene overnight and then will jump to Sand Point, Seattle.

MILKING SHORTHORN C. T. A.

Sixteen cows in the Rock County Milking Shorthorn C. T. A. produced 40 or more pounds of butterfat during the 29 days in February. Ida 2nd, a registered cow in the herd of Payne and Brown, Janesville, was high cow, producing 1,517 pounds of milk and 383 pounds of fat. Anna Rose, a two year old heifer, of Alfa Antigo, Milton Junction, made a record of 46.5 pounds. Several daughters of Walgrave Enterprise in the R. W. Lamb and Son herd are going strong.

Rye Brothers, Avalon, have many high producers. Their herd bid, Drahman, is growing rapidly and this year is the best ever. This bull is expected to be one of the outstanding show bulls of the breed. Walgrave Belle, a daughter of Walgrave Showstone, also an International show prize winner, freshened and made a 32 pound record. She is one of the best show producers in the county as a two year old, showing good udder development and true dual-purpose type. British Prince, the new herd sire at the James Hadden and Son farm, is fast along.

Good records are being made on cows in the Kitch herd, new association which have produced 40 pounds or more of butterfat during the period of 29 days ending Feb. 29, 1924.

The following table gives the names and records of the cows in the association which have produced 40 pounds or more of butterfat during the period of 29 days ending Feb. 29, 1924.

"SOYBEAN" BRIGGS SPEAKS HERE SAT.

Fourth Short Course Lecture in High School Here on March 29th.

George ("Soy Bean") Briggs, Wisconsin college of agriculture, will speak at the fourth "short course" lecture to be given in the new Janesville high school on Saturday night, March 29. The program was arranged by L. E. Jackson, agricultural instructor of the school and J. C. Nisbet, Rock county livestock agent.

During previous meetings, farmers attending expressed a desire to hear a lecture and hold a discussion on the value of soybeans as a southern Wisconsin crop.

During the last three years soybeans have been growing in popular favor. They thrive in the same climate as corn and the crop has high value in obtaining home grown protein feed. The crop is valuable for silage, to be planted with corn, for hay, pasture, for seed and has few enemies, no insects and no crop.

While the beans grow better on limed soil they will thrive on unlimed soils. The methods of planting and harvesting and feed values will be explained during the meeting Saturday night, free to the rural public and those interested in agriculture.

"AGGIE" STUDENTS DISTRIBUTE SEED

Students of the Janesville high school agricultural course experienced good sale for all the pedigree seeds raised during the year, according to L. E. Jackson, instructor. High quality seed was obtained by the students from the Wisconsin Experiment station and plated in Rock county.

Arrangements are being made by L. E. Jackson and William McVean, poultry club leader, for the obtaining of the hatching eggs for the Rock county junior poultry club. The best quality of eggs are to be obtained and distributed to the club members at no extra charge.

The Rock county flocks are obtaining 500 eggs, bred for production. They raise Barred Rock at the farm and have had considerable success with the flock since building the modern poultry house. The poultry is cared for by Stewart Cullen, a high school "aggie" student.

GUERNSEY BREEDERS MEET HERE WEDNESDAY

The annual meeting of the Rock county Guernsey association will be held in the Janesville Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday March 13. Dinner will be served at noon.

Prof. J. C. Humphrey, Madison College of Agriculture, will deliver the main address. In addition there will be a discussion on herd and county development work by Rock county men.

During the evening Prof. Humphrey will give an illustrated lecture on a South American judging trip at the agricultural meeting of the Methodist church.

LIVESTOCK DISEASE APPARENTLY CURBED

The outbreak of hoof and mouth disease in California is apparently checked.

A total of 3,575 cattle, 8,127 hogs, 51 goats and 10 sheep, totaling 12,134 animals, were killed under the supervision of the government.

"All the infected herds are under control," reads the report of the federal agents.

CUNNINGHAM TALKS ON ELECTION LAWS

55 Polls Workers Hear City Attorney's Explanation of Statutes.

Pointing the way to an orderly conduct of the three elections to be held in 1924—In April, September and November—City Attorney Roger G. Cunningham gave an address on "Wisconsin's Election Laws." Before 55 of the 70 members of Janeville's election board at the Culton Memorial Hall. An open discussion was held at the close of his talk when many questions in regard to election techniques were answered by the city attorney.

The school of instruction in election methods was the first of its kind ever conducted and is expected to be most beneficial, particularly to the newest members of the 10 election boards. Qualifications of Voters.

"While no election here in recent years has been invalidated by illegalities in the voting precincts, there have been hundreds and it is always well to see that the election laws are followed strictly," said Mr. Cunningham. "Especial importance is attached to the duties of election inspectors upon whom rests the greatest responsibility for the orderly conduct of elections."

Mr. Cunningham brought out that any man or woman citizen 21 years of age or over is entitled to vote, provided he has lived within the state a year and his precinct 10 days. The city attorney declared he could find no authority for letting a person vote who had not 10 days residence in a precinct, although some administrators probably have done in cases where people have moved from one precinct to another.

On Absent Voting.

One salient feature brought out was that electors taken ill on election day have no way in which to vote unless they can get their polling places. In the past, it is reported, there have been instances of city clerks going to homes of the sick to receive votes on the day of an election and counting them as votes by mail.

The city attorney explained that votes by mail can be received only up to the day before election, and then only from electors who expect to be absent from the city on election day on account of business, or unable to visit the polls on account of illness. Applications for ballots to be cast by mail must be made to the city clerk he said.

No Talking in Booths.

The election officials may tolerate no electioneering within the polls, nor within 100 feet from the building," Mr. Cunningham said. "Neither may there be any talking with or by a person once he has entered a polling place. He must go alone there. It is the official duty to see that this measure is obeyed."

City Attorney Cunningham said that any elector may and the inspectors shall challenge the right to vote of any one whom they may believe or suspect is not qualified. The rule applies to all literate and illiterate persons we made up. If a voter may have the assistance of any elector in the county in marking his ballot; or if unable to read and write, or physically unable to mark his ballot, he may secure the assistance of two of the election officials. The election laws, which were distributed this year by Secretary of State Fred N. Zimmerman were distributed to the election officials at the opening of the meeting.

At the Theatres

AT THE HERENLY. Two Latin beauties, Pola Negri and Antonio Moreno, contribute the correct atmosphere to "The Spanish Dancer," a picture of exotic love and passion. The story is based on the masterpiece of the foreign actress, Pola Negri, and it is indeed a triumph for her, but for others also who support her. The story concerns the grandsons of Spain. Don Caesar, a dispossessed nobleman gives a lively interpretation similar to that of Douglas Fairbanks in "The Scarlet Pimpernel." Katharine Cornell as the French princess and later the Spanish queen; Wallace Berry as Phillip IV, king of Spain; and Dawn Powell, the new child star, who has had the able role of the Infanta of Spain, are all admirably cast.

The historic background for the fairy tale is given in credible detail to the picture. Martina, the tippy queen meets and marries the nobleman, Don Caesar, thus becoming a countess. A Cinderella romance is woven in by bringing in episodes of that period of history when Cardinal Richelieu of France was attempting a treaty between Spain and France.

Many scenes are stupendous, the scenes taken at the Feast of the Magdalene being a masterly touch in depicting the life of the nobility and popular scenes shown with the gypsies in camp and many lavish sets of the interior of the Spanish court. Intrigues by the ministers of the Spanish court are well handled in an absorbing angle. All in all, "The Spanish Dancer" is a very finished, very acceptable production.

AT THE APOLLO. In the part that he is best known to the show world, Lew Kelly, international comedian, made a decided hit in "Monte Cristo, Jr." The boy version of the opening bill of the Kelly-Musical troupe, Monday night, at the Apollo theater.

Many little songs were presented by singing girls. In addition to several specialty numbers by soloists, The Columbia Harmony Four was well received.

"The Submarine Man" will be presented this afternoon and night, for the Wednesday and Thursday bill. "Monte Cristo, Jr." will be given. This is Lew Kelly's London hit. The picture "Spanish Dancer," the traditional another musical comedy with a good plot, will be given. There are three shows daily, 2:30; 7; and 9 p.m.

Nothing to Do with Facts.

The platform of the La Follette group in Wisconsin on which the candidates for delegates to the republican national convention are running—
a platform ready made for them in Washington
—contains the following clause:

"The usurpation in recent years by the federal courts of the power to nullify laws duly enacted by the legislative branch of the government is a plain violation of the constitution. Abraham Lincoln, in his first inaugural address, said: 'The candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the government, upon vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions
of the Supreme Court, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their government into the hands of the tribunal.' The constitution specifically vests all legislative power in the congress, giving that body power and authority to over-ride the veto of the president. The federal courts are given no authority under the constitution to veto acts of congress. Since the federal courts have assumed to exercise such veto power,
it is essential that the constitution shall give to the congress, the right to over-ride such judicial veto, otherwise the court will make itself master
over the other coordinate branches of the government. The people themselves must approve or disapprove the present exercise of legislative power by the federal courts."

It is quite possible that some people will believe the statements, but the facts do not bear out any such conclusion. In the 135 years, since the organization of the supreme court of the United States, there have been but 48 cases where the supreme court has held that statutes passed by the legislative bodies were out of harmony with the constitution of the United States. The court has constantly stood between the usurpation of the rights of states by the federal government and equality, with justice, have stood adamant against the interpretation of state legislative acts by the supreme court as a judicial body. Only within the last three weeks two extremely important cases of this character have been before the supreme court. One came up from New York state in which was involved the question of the constitutionality of an act of the New York state legislature by which women were prohibited from working in restaurants from 10:30 p.m. to 6 a.m.
In refusing to accept jurisdiction in this case, the court said it was not the purpose of this court to interfere with the fundamental right of the state
to decide certain judicial and legislative matters.
The supreme court renounced any rights vested in it in passing judgment on these legislative acts by states, not in any way affecting the rights of the whole people of the nation.

Almost parallel was the action of the court in the appeal from the supreme court of Kansas as to the powers of the Kansas Industrial Relations court. In this case the supreme court of the United States does not attempt to say whether the power to settle strikes and labor differences is properly vested in the state court or not, or that it is legally right or wrong. What it does say is that the state must decide for itself.

These decisions give the lie to the La Follette platform plank. If congress, for instance, should pass an act, which would provide for an established church in contravention of Article I of the Bill of Rights, under the La Follette scheme, the supreme court would have no power to declare that such an act was a violation of the constitution and an invasion of the rights of the people.

It is perfectly palpable that such a balance wheel as the court, should be somewhere in the government. The very fact that in all these years the supreme court has acted with care and great judgment in passing upon the constitutionality of laws made under eminent domain by congress, and only 48 such cases have been so decided, is evidence of the gravity with which these subjects are approached.

The gold braid doubtless will be demanded in next month's list. That the revolution is going to be a bloody one is forecast by the fact that in the same list of things which Venezuela yearns for is to be found the item, mop-wringers. It is easy to see that the La Libertad boys intend that the streets shall flow with blood to such an extent that the whole country will have to be mopped up afterwards. Apparently the mops are so hard but mop-wringers will be in demand immediately after the fighting.

A strong demand has set in from Denmark for baby carriages. This is not surprising. Any one who remembers his Anderson's Fairy Tales, which came from the same part of the world that produced Hamlet, will recall that the stork figures in many of the stories. Of course with these officious birds perching around on people's chimneys
it is not surprising that a demand for baby carriages should develop.

But what does surprise, coming from Denmark, is the listed demand for yarns. It is possible that yarns desired are of the sort used for knitting sweaters and making other garments, but the catologue doesn't say so. It merely says yarns. Apparently the Danes have tired of the Fairy Tales,
of which the children of this country never tire.

So it goes all down the list and all over the world. Chinese yearns for celluloid, Czechoslovakia must have selenite, Cuba's need is for mica,
while Brazil insists on galvanized sheets.

These are the things the world wants and American factories all over the United States are marking them and American exporters are shipping
them out as fast as they can.

It's a circus spectacle to see Heflin and Garrison
the two senators running bareheaded in a circle,
mouths wide open, crying "Thief!"

Besides being one of the lieutenants of La Follette,
which he has heretofore always denied,

WHAT THE WORLD WANTS

BY FREDERIC J. HANKIN.

Washington.—The work of compiling government information for trade and business may seem rather humdrum and uninteresting, and the data gathered may be suspected of being as dry as the dust in a law library, but it all depends on the point of view. It is possible for one to wear rose-colored spectacles and see a good deal of humor and interest in even the most matter-of-fact of such government activities. By peering into the chinks and crannies of Washington
work, one can find all manner of entertainment.

For instance, take one of the most formidable of compilations. It is a periodical list of demands by foreign importers for types of American goods. At first glance it bears a close resemblance to a catalogue, or possibly, that most forbidding of all printed documents, a railroad timetable.

The key to the humor of such a dull compilation lies in the general title which it bears. This list is prepared for distribution to manufacturers,
importers, exporters and all sorts of traders
throughout the country to give them an idea of what sort of goods are in request from distant countries. For this reason it very properly has been given the title: "What the World Wants."

The directions for having a good time from this dull catalogue are to keep the title in mind running down the columns. For instance we find that the portion of the world called England
wants toy balloons.

Probably manufacturers of rubber goods merely read this as a record of an order received from some British firm for toy balloons. But, taken in relation to the general title, "What the World Wants," the reader may conjure up a diverting picture of the personification of England, John Bull, stoutly demanding a toy balloon. He may want to carry it into the House of Lords to keep him awake during a debate. He may want to carry it through the nave of Westminster Abbey
to give a bit of color to the sombre scene.
Women in business should profit by this day's planetary direction which is believed to bring easy transactions with men of large interest.
It is an auspicious sway for pushing political unitions where women are interested.

The seers prophecy that in the coming winter

national campaign sensational events will transpire
and their effect will increase the activity of women.

Now, suppose we take another country to show
how varied are the things which the world wants.
Greece, the United States government gravely advises us, wants beehives. We can imagine the Athens gathering in the ruined porches of the Acropolis and discussing among themselves their passionate longing for beehives.

We remember that in song and myth and story
for thousands of years the bees of Hybla were among the finest livestock which Greece boasted.
But apparently, the bees of Hybla have lost their homeland for the Greeks are demanding beehives.

Curiously enough from Greece also comes a demand for emery stone grinding machinery.

Now emery stone grinding machinery is used for putting sharp points and edges on things. It is possible that after the Greeks get their American beehives and, presumably, some bees to put into them, they intend to use emery wheels with which to sharpen the bees' stings? This seems hardly probable but, nevertheless the idea presents itself.

Now from far off New Zealand comes a demand that is rather startling. New Zealand wants corsets.
We are inclined to think of New Zealand corsets
as one of those new parts of the world—the wide open spaces where men are men and all that sort of things—yet New Zealand confesses to a keen longing for corsets. That's what the world wants, says New Zealand. Corsets head the list of desires for the Greeks are demanding beehives.

"Because of a family named Jefferson who used to live on the Oneida River west of Tonganoxie," said Derr.

But Pap was an unregenerate ruffian and stiff in his own conceit. If his enemies had expected him to win, they were disappointed. He snarled at the bear at bay snarls at his prosecutors. "What do you want?"

"I want all the money that has been paid over to you for Miss Warren's benefit," replied the lawyer.

Pap's laugh was raucous. "It's all spent."

Sam shot a quick look at his father. He was reasonably sure that the money was not spent. Naturally he made no comment. But the lawyer's eyes were sharp. He had caught the look.

"I don't believe it has all been spent," said he. "Where is it?"

"Spent," persisted Pap. "If you don't believe me, try to find it."

The lawyer nodded. "I know where you cashed those checks. The Piegans City bank people were very accurate in their records. I wished why I wished to know a few things. You always took the money with you, they said. I don't believe for a moment you spent it all. Return what you have left, make up the remainder in cattle, and we'll call it square."

"What do I get in return for being so accommodating?" sneered Pap.

"Life. Instead of the rope, I'll defend you at the trial. I can manage it."

"What makes you think I'm mixed up in this Tonganoxie business?"

The lawyer passed a weary hand across his forehead. "We brought Mr. Tom Jefferson with us. He was pitched. He nodded to me as soon as you came in that you were the man. That's Mr. Jefferson in the kitchen doorway."

Pap did not lose his composure for a moment. "He wasn't there when I came in," he said, rising and turning to see the man that now stood on the sill of the kitchen doorway.

"He was watching you through the crack of the door, I thought it would be better that way. Easier for him to recognize you and all that."

Pap Hawking moved forward a step, peering. "Is that Mr. Jefferson?"

This was too much for Mr. Jefferson. "You damned murderer!" he roared and leaped at Pap.

The latter, in the most natural manner in the world, dodged back

DETROIT WOMAN RECOVERS

Health Much Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"Your little book left at my door was my best doctor. I read it, then said to my husband, 'Please go and get me some Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I want to take it.' The first month I took three bottles of Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Best Cold Medicine, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. If you only knew how much better I feel! Now when my friends say they are sick I tell them to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines. I give the little book and your medicines the best of thanks."—Mrs. HAMERINK, 3765 25th Street, Detroit, Mich.

In newspapers and booklets we are constantly publishing letters from women, who explain how they were helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

These letters should guide you. If you are troubled with pains and nervousness, or any feminine disorder, bear in mind that the Vegetable Compound has helped other women and should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Eggs à la Buckingham—Pour

slices toast, one cup cream sauce,

four eggs, three tablespoons milk,

four tablespoons grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt and pepper. Dip

the edges of the toast in boiling salt-

water, then dip the toast in the sauce

over the top, and pour the sauce

over the eggs, which have been sautéed

with the seasonings and the liquid.

Sprinkle the top with the grated

cheese, and set the dish in the oven

just long enough to melt the cheese;

then serve at once.

Corn Flakes—Scald one quart rich

milk in double boiler with one can of corn flakes and one slice of onion. Mix

three tablespoons flour, one-quarter

cup cold water and add to the scalded milk. Cook about 20 minutes, stirring constantly until smooth

and creamy. Press through sieve,

cool one-half cup tomatoes about

10 minutes, add one-quarter teaspoon oil and press through sieve. Combine with cold water, stir well. Strain and add one-third cup butter, beat

well, and then add salt and butter to taste.

Boston Brown Bread—Place in a bowl: Two cups of bread crumbs,

one-half cup syrup, one teaspoon salt

and sugar, one slice of onion, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup

of warm water and let cool. Add

one-half cup of cornmeal, one-half

cup of graham flour. Beat to mix

thoroughly and pour in well-greased

pands and steam or boil one and one-

half hours. Remove the cover and

place a stone over 20 minutes to

dry out. A strong coffee can make a splendid mold.

Lenten Potatoes—Two cups dried boiled potatoes, one cup oysters, one half cup bacon, one tablespoon of water,

one-half cup of cream, one-half cup

of warm water and let cool. Add

one-half cup of cornmeal, one-half

cup of graham flour. Beat to mix

thoroughly and pour in well-greased

pands and steam or boil one and one-

half hours. Remove the cover and

place a stone over 20 minutes to

dry out. A strong coffee can

make a splendid mold.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Answer to Mrs. R. J. H.

The letter you sent was too long to print but I will copy it and receive the answer.

I am much pleased the way you are feeding the baby. The formula is not good and I feel sure that the amount you gave is wrong some place. You surely do not give such a strong feeding and as small a quantity. All in all an incomplete loss as to what exactly what you do, whether you mean liquid breast or a feeding or nine ounce in the whole day, either one of which would be terrible.

At the age and weight of your baby milk in the proportion of 21 ounces of whole milk and the same of water and one ounce of sugar would make a good, better formula, and I hope no reason why it should not be digested. You may start with 15 of milk and the rest water, and work up to the milk as you like.

The rush is likely due to some element in the food that is incorrect. In this case it may be the sugar which is unusually large. It might have been the carbohydrate element in the other food. At any rate with only one ounce of sugar per day this ought to right itself. Use a zinc oxide antiseptic in the rash.

Mrs. C. E. R. writes:

I am writing in regard to my baby girl who is 17 months old. She plays all day without a murmur, but at night wakes every 15 minutes and all night at least twice. What do you advise me to do?

Dear lady, I have to be nothing short of a wizard to discover what is wrong here. What is the baby fed? How and where does she sleep?

Is she played with before bedtime? I could give no advice as to what is wrong until I know one or all of these things. Please write me more in detail.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

ABUSED

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman 12 years old and am considered very attractive among my friends.

My husband works every day and provides well for me, but he is jealous of me and does not allow me to go out with other women.

He takes me to the movies and sports with other girls. He stays with me until 12 o'clock at night and comes home at 6 a.m.

Please advise me what to do.

CURLY

You are too young to spoil your life.

With such a man, it seems to me

the best plan would be to leave him before you have a family to hold you. Since he is so unfair and unkind at the start, you have nothing to look forward to.

A THIRD PERSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young woman with a man who was transferred to another city by his employer. I would like to go to him again.

I am a widow and sports with other girls. He stays with me until 12 o'clock at night and comes home at 6 a.m.

Please advise me what to do.

VITAL ERA LOOMS IN MEXICAN LIFE

Arrival of New U. S. Ambassador Beginning of Important Relations.

by DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923 by Janesville Daily Gazette

Washington—The departure of Charles E. Warren, newly named American ambassador to Mexico, for his post next Thursday after conferences which began today with President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes, will mark the beginning of an important era in the relations between the United States and Mexico.

In some respects the months that lie immediately ahead are more vital to the future of Mexico than any period since the fall of Diaz in 1911. The presidential elections will be held on July 6 to choose a successor to President Obregon, who, under the constitution, is ineligible for re-election. The change that the new administration means is to foist General Calles on the electorate to the recent outbreak of revolution under Adolfo de la Huerta, another presidential candidate. This revolt had been fairly well subdued, due to some extent to the promptness with which the Washington government sent military reinforcements to the front. Missions were sent to the various parts of Mexico.

The Rev. Charles M. Olson, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, Janesville, spent Sunday night as the guest of the Rev. J. J. Shanahan, Monsey, they went to Elkhorn to assist Father Eggers in services at the Catholic church.

B. A. Hoffman, who has been business manager of the Delavan Republican for the past two years, resigned to accept the secretaryship of the congressional delegation to Congress.

On May 1, he will be a delegate to the Democratic national convention.

Having recognized the Obregon government, the United States did not go to war with Mexico, nor did it support the revolutionaries.

It was the intervention of the United States that brought about the peace and quietude that followed the revolution.

In the last few weeks, it has become apparent that the Obregon regime is not the only one that can bring the reconstruction of the country. The reconstruction of the country has been delayed by revolution and now the opportunity comes once more to Mexico to begin the pending process.

Satisfactory adjustment has been made of the long drawn out oil controversy, as well as the matter of other Mexican grievances which did not meet with the support of most of the people.

It was the machinery of claims tribunals in the case of the copper against Coolidge.

He was afraid that to be a candidate for delegate would injure his campaign for congress in the fall.

The new government will be formed up in Madison and at the Wisconsin street headquarters of the progressive party and that he could take it or leave it as he saw fit but if he did not there would be another candidate in the field against him in the first district.

Peace for District.

The La Follette congressional delegation is afraid of the first district going for the Progressive party.

For the past two years Congress has been affiliated with La Follette and could not be counted in his ranks.

But during the session of the congress so far he has been one of the leaders of the group obeying orders of the senior senator and "some come and go" of the La Follette group.

In this connection a story is told of the way Cooper tried to become a delegate against Coolidge.

True Story of Woodrow Wilson

gress only in a theoretical sense—made the first two years a perilous time for a man to be president. He was known to stamp anyone on the back in jocular fashion. He was soothed enough upon occasions, good-humored and a fascinating conversationalist, but he did not know how to give practical politicians with whom he was dealing a sense of security which means working tooth and nail and with unflinching loyalty.

Impressions may differ, jealousies are always present in the immediate circle of a president's life, but the secretaries of state, the attorney general, the chief of staff, the first lady, and the first lady's maid, etc., all of whom are in close touch with the president, will exert influence over Mr. Wilson's actions. His chief influence, however, is that of his private secretary, James P. Tammam.

No one in recent years had been the private secretary of the Tammany chief more adept in its use, however, than Senator Tammam. He was able to set the stage for an address by the president or for the announcement of some important action, and to indicate what was being done without revealing it to the press. In this he was far superior to Tammany's chief influence, the Tammany chief, who was not so much a man trained to check it as he was a man trained to use it.

BRINGING UP FATHERBusy Man's Sport Page

By FRANK SINCLAIR

ONE DAY during this winter, Charley Goodrich of Fort Atkinson, one of southern Wisconsin's greatest home-grown baseball fans and boosters, was two miles from home, walking toward him. When they got up closer, he saw water coming from their eyes. "Why, Frank," he said, "what's the matter?" "Nothing," said Frank Roth, the man addressed. "Bobby and I have just been out for our regular morning walk down the road, and when that wind was gone, we were home now for breakfast." Frank is coach of the Cleveland American league baseball team and Bobby plays in the Anderson Association with St. Paul. They live over at Burlington except when the season of the national meeting carries them to their occupations. Every day the elder Roth, now in his 65th year, takes his walk and every day he goes through setting up exercises. There is no wonder that when he got to the training camp of the Indians at Fort Springs, Ark., last week he finished his walk each day and was ready for more, while the younger men were putting in trim all the time is Frank's scheme. He makes Bobby come along with him, though the younger fellow doesn't fancy it at all.

ROTH WAS with the Yankees before he went over to the Indians. In his heyday, he was a class catcher. One day while the Yanks were out at practice, a follower of the team came into the park and sat down on the bench alongside of Manager Miller Huggins. He watched the man with the backstop glove off, studied him, caught and admired the manner in which he snatched the ball down to first and over to third. "Who's the rookie, you've got, Huggins," he said. "Say, he's got a lot of zip. If he has any chance?" "Yes, he's pretty good," replied Huggins. "Guess we'll keep him along. Got him in and out of the 'Five'." Then the man spoken of came in, snatched off his mask and—"Frank Roth, I'll be jiggered," gasped the man on the bench. "You, I thought your baseball days were dead and buried long ago when you were young, went back."

THAT'S THE type of man Roth is and Goodrich knows him as well as anybody in these parts. Quoting Goodrich again, Roth declares that Tri Speaker, manager of Cleveland, is about the best man in the game today, and pointed out how he can play at first, second or third and how he batted about .360 last year. He says that the secret of Speaker's success lies in his executive ability. If Speaker comes to the conclusion that one of his men isn't any good, he gets rid of him and puts in someone else who is think is better. When he gives a man a job, he does it such as may fit the bill, what he wants and then lets the individual work along his own lines so long as he procures results. Roth has played ball many years; has been in close contact with the best of them and to Speaker he gives the prender honors.

You'll Want the Simplest Pattern Made - and That is the McCall Printed Pattern.

To make the pleasant task of making new clothes still pleasanter you will want the new McCall Printed Patterns.

The styles alone would be reason enough! They are such attractive examples of the latest modes. The tailored looking frocks and suits are so carefully cut; the sports wear (more popular than ever this year) is comfortable in such a swagger manner.

Clever as they are, though, the good styles are only half the reason for using McCall Printed Patterns.

Washable Fabrics in Cool, Crisp Colors

The rich colors and weaves that rule the spring vogue are reflected in the wash fabrics. They foretell the charm and beauty of summer, whose crisp, fresh air inspires the smartest of frocks. All that is novel, new and approved is here.
